

Thank you for attending the 36th Annual New Jersey Friends of Clearwater Festival. This is our 11th year in Asbury Park! Clearwater gives its heartfelt thanks to all those who donated so much. Saker ShopRite stores, and Wakefern, Inc., have consistently given us a generous donation, food to feed our volunteers, and give us a refrigerated truck so the food we feed our volunteers is fresh, the drinks cold, and we have plenty of ice, a must in August! They have been sponsoring the Festival for years and we owe them so much gratitude. We'd also like to thank the Monmouth County Board of Chosen Freeholders for a generous donation, again a consistent supporter. Kepwell donated 20 5-gallon bottles of water for our kitchen in the Hospitality area, where we cook for and feed our volunteers. Many thanks go to Meg Flores of NJ Youth Corps for providing vibrant young people who help us all day during the Festival, from setup to breakdown. Thank you, young men and women. Your help is truly appreciated. It takes a village to plan and run a festival, and we have a dedicated core group, but we couldn't pull it off without all our new and veteran volunteers whose unceasing hard work and support really make it work. We couldn't do it without all of you!

President's Message

Welcome to the 36th Annual New Jersey Friends of Clearwater Festival. We are proud to be the largest environmental and music festival in New Jersey.

This past year we've fought the good fight both within our group as well as joining up with other environmental groups. Under the leadership of Ed Dlugosz we've done multiple cleanups at Whale Creek Pond and its streams, centered around Eatontown/Ocean Township, just downstream of Fort Monmouth. In connection with the cleanups we have applied for a $25,000 grant from EPA's Environmental Justice Program for the water testing and source point pollution identification, an expensive but necessary task to see how the waters are surviving.

We've also joined up with Food and Water Watch's Coalition Against Hydrofracking, a destructive process that allows extraction of natural gas by drilling horizontally in shale and shooting millions and millions of gallons of poisonous water into the ground. Please visit the Food and Water Watch table and sign Jim Walsh's petitions.

Clearwater teaming up with many other groups won the battles against LNJ, liquefied natural gas, in our oceans, but the fight continues as new applications arise. Also find petitions at the NJFC Environmental Booth.

Our Traveling Environmental Festival, run by George Moffatt, has reached 500 students in three schools this past year, and probably 2,000 people at the Sandy Hook Ocean Fun Days earlier this summer. We believe that educating children about the environment is so important. They "get it" and they are our future!

I am personally thrilled to have our Festival in Asbury Park, now the 11th year here! It's a great city, there are major signs of renewal everywhere, from the Boardwalk to the downtown. The beaches are clean and crowded, even on weekdays, a big change from the '90s. Huge!

A big thank you to our sponsors, Saker ShopRites, Inc.; Wakerfern, Inc.; and the Monmouth County Board of Chosen Freeholders. They are an enormous help with their donations of money and food and our ShopRite refrigerated truck. But we still need VOLUNTEERS. We have a great core group of people, but there are LOTS of details and smaller chores and we'd appreciate if YOU would volunteer in the coming year. YOU could be just what we need for some of the smaller tasks associated with our Festival. Talk to Lynn at our Membership/Volunteer table off Bond Street. Sign up and become a member; that's another way to support us. We are all volunteers so every cent goes towards the Festival. Visit us at www.NJClearwater.org

Also please visit our NJFC Environmental booth. Jack Charlton and Barbara Charlton have been manning (and womanning) the booth for years, teaching the kids with the Environmental Wheel and collecting prizes literally all year long so every child can win a prize when they answer the environmental question. Go over and say hello to Jack and Barbara. I bet you'll recognize them!

Christmas in August. Well, you don't get the gifts in August, you BUY them! I have been doing my Christmas shopping at Clearwater for years! We have really good Crafters, Green Vendors and Commercial Vendors. I even found a gift for a 95-year-old in our family last year! It's wonderful when December comes along and you can say, "I've already bought gifts for half my list!"

Don't forget there's three stages, the Main Stage facing Main Street, the acoustic stage in the second field, and the Circle of Song between the other two stages where you can just go have a seat and listen, sing along or bring your own instrument and play.

And most important (other than having fun), visit all our Environmental Activists. We have about 25 different environmental groups, covering the spectrum. You're bound to find some issue you're interested in. Even if you just sign a petition, you've helped! I've met most of them, they're dedicated volunteers and they'd be glad to tell you what's new, good or bad, in their area of interest.

Thank you all for coming. I'm sure I could write more, but I'd rather talk to you at the Festival. I will have a name tag, and all the volunteers know me. If you see me come over and say hello.

And buy some 50/50 tickets! We started this online before the festival so the pot is getting BIG!

Sincerely,
Joellen Lundy, President and Site Director
NJ Friends of Clearwater

Traveling Environmental Fair Reaches at Least 2,500 Students

The Traveling Environmental Fair (TEF), a centerpiece of the N.J. Friends of Clearwater's environmental advocacy program, reached about 500 grammar school students in three schools this Spring semester, plus about 2,000 youngsters at the "Ocean Fun Day" at Sandy Hook.

The TEF program, a series of one-hour presentations that were held at several schools, includes an introduction to New Jersey's land, air and water problems; the critical role plankton play in the food chain; the ocean's role in maintaining the atmosphere's oxygen levels through photosynthesis and generating fresh water through the "water cycle;" and the adverse impact unnecessary land-based nutrients have on New Jersey's coastal waters. The teachers and administrators at the other schools had nothing but praise for the program.

The second phase of TEF's outreach was a tabling event at "Ocean Fun Day," an all-day outdoor exhibit of educational, environmental, and governmental organizations, overlooking Raritan Bay at Sandy Hook. "Fun Day" drew about 6,000 people – according to the event's sponsors-- at least half of whom were students. Visitors to our TEF "Raritan Bay" exhibit sometimes stood several rows deep to view our fish tank full of live killies, crabs, snails, and puffer fish, as well as our display of crab, clam, and mussel shells and other marine specimens.

George Moffatt, TEF Director

THE ENVIRONMENTAL SAIL PROGRAM

Clearwater's Environmental Sail Program (ESP) will set sail for another season. The launching of the Adam Hyler will be Sunday August 21st following the Festival. The boat will moor at River Rats Marina in Fair Haven.

The Hyler is a replica of the famous Tuckerton Garvey designed before and sailed since the Revolutionary War. The Tuckerton Garvey was used for clamming, hunting, and was considered the seafaring "pickup truck" of its day. The yawl-rigged 26' Adam Hyler is the largest Tuckerton Garvey extant. Most were less than 18 feet.

The Adam Hyler is in it 25th sailing season.

It is a Tuckerton Bay Sailing Garvey and probably the last of its kind in the water. The design is from 1732 and Tuckerton, NJ. The boat recently had the mast footing break but we have repaired and improved the footing and rebuilt the forward framing. We plan to be back in the water for the Saturday sails starting August 27th. We sail out of River Rats in Fair Haven on Saturdays at 1pm. If attendance is high we will probably try for two sails on Saturdays.

We hope we can get another donated dock space for 2012 and beyond as a shallow berth allows for a more robust sailing, training and water testing program.

The Adam Hyler is also available for schools or other organizations for environmental excursions or as part of NJFC participation in Festivals.

Reservations must be made for those activities.
