New Jersey's Oldest & Largest Environmental Music Festival

President's Message

New Jersey Friends of Clearwater (NJFC) is thrilled to celebrate its 38th Annual Clearwater Festival with our new partner, the City of Long Branch today, Sunday, September 15, 2013 and for years to come. Last May, we jointly announced that the state's oldest and largest celebration of the environment—the NJFC Clearwater Festival—is coming to the oceanfront Great Lawn in historic Long Branch...and here we are! Mayor Schneider and the City have welcomed us with open arms when he said, "We are pleased to welcome the Clearwater Festival to Long Branch. Our Great Lawn, right on the Promenade, is the perfect spot for NJFC's message of respect for natural resources." We promised each other that day that we would work hard to make the partnership a very long and successful one.

An annual tradition since 1975, the free Clearwater Festival is known for its mix of live music and song, arts and environmental education and advocacy in a family-friendly (late) summer party. Clearwater has spent the last 40 years teaching the lessons of clean, clear water and stewardship of our waterways, hence our name.

This year's annual theme is "Superstorms, Droughts, Melting Ice Caps—Fight Climate Change!" It has been not quite a year—October 29, 2012—since Superstorm Sandy directly hit the NJ Coast near Atlantic City and devastated all NJ and the nation both in terms of dollar damage (NJ: $30B; US: $78B) and human suffering. We, especially NJ, are still paying that price. Any storm, even superstorms like Sandy, don't prove climate change but it is one additional piece in an overwhelming body of evidence—along with concurrent droughts, melting ice caps, sea level rise, acidification of our water, to name a few—that has changed the minds of many and convinced non-scientists, doubters, and deniers that humans and their actions are a major cause of climate change. Since human behavior has caused these changes, it is up to all of us—not just the aware here today—to change that behavior. Until the U.S., its people and its politicians, join the majority of the aware and actively climate change-fighting nations, we can sadly look forward to changing our beloved way of life here at the shore and around the globe.

Please visit our NJ Friends of Clearwater Environmental teachers, activists, sailors, and their displays to learn more about how you as an individual, group, town, and state can make a difference in the fight against human-caused climate change. Please visit our guest environmental activists' booths and displays for other pieces of the puzzle. Revered environmental laws, like the Clean Water and Clean Air acts, are being "Waived", diluted or nullified by lobbyists and their pet legislators. Protective and conservationist federal and state public watchdogs like the EPA, NJDEP, FDA, and National Parks are being underfunded, dismantled or neutered.

Like almost all years, it is another critical election year—Representatives, Senators, Governors, Legislators, and local government. One weapon we have to fight climate change is the vote. We can help give you guidance and resources on that vote. NJFC is a member of many coalitions and organizations—NJEF, Sierra Club, and others—that are professionally staffed and have researched and are ready to provide the details that you need to make an informed choice.

We are again delighted to see the major signs of recovery from Sandy everywhere in our host city. So, welcome to all of you! Visit our Clearwater environmental displays, our sailboat, and join our great group at our membership booth. Enjoy the many talented performers—four stages. Join in at our open-mike Circle of Song. Visit our artist & crafter area. The goal of our festival is for every person attending to walk away with a greater understanding of, and commitment to, environmental stewardship. Thank you all for coming out and showing your support for a healthier environment.

Ed Dlugosz
President, New Jersey Friends of Clearwater

Traveling Environmental Fair Reaches at Least 2,500 Students

The Traveling Environmental Fair (TEF), a centerpiece of the N.J. Friends of Clearwater's environmental advocacy program, reached about 800 grammar school students in five schools this Spring semester, plus about 2,000 youngsters at the "Ocean Fun Day" at Sandy Hook and local science fairs.

The TEF program, a series of one-hour presentations that were held at several schools, includes an introduction to New Jersey's land, air and water problems; the critical role plankton play in the food chain; the ocean's role in maintaining the atmosphere's oxygen levels through photosynthesis and generating fresh water through the "water cycle;" and the adverse impact unnecessary land-based nutrients have on New Jersey's coastal waters. The teachers and administrators at the other schools had nothing but praise for the program.

The second phase of TEF's outreach was a tabling event at "Ocean Fun Day," an all-day outdoor exhibit of educational, environmental, and governmental organizations, overlooking Raritan Bay at Sandy Hook. "Fun Day" drew about 6,000 people – according to the event's sponsors-- at least half of whom were students. Visitors to our TEF "Raritan Bay" exhibit sometimes stood several rows deep to view our fish tank full of live killies, crabs, snails, and puffer fish, as well as our display of crab, clam, and mussel shells and other marine specimens.

THE ENVIRONMENTAL SAIL PROGRAM

Our boat, the Adam Hyler, is 28 years old. It was built using technology that had a life in the range of 20 to 25 years. So we have certainly got more program from this vessel than one would expect. But despite heroic efforts it is now leaking to badly in places that cannot be reached for caulking.

The Adam Hyler will be on display for the last time at the 2013 NJFC Environmental Festival, Long Branch, Sunday, September 15.

The NJFC Boat Committee is quite advanced in planning its replacement. A new sailing garvey will be close to a look-alike with the existing one. Only the hull is being replaced; we will use the same spars and sails. Our plan is to build this boat over the winter, and to launch it in the spring of 2014. The Environmental Sail Program will then continue its unbroken record of being on the water every summer from 1986 to 2014 and into the future.

Take Part in Creating a New Garvey !

Woodworking skills will be put to good use, but even a hand or two to hold things together is useful.
A good chance to learn. Youth from 12 up are welcome.

THANK YOU TO OUR VOLUNTEERS!

From all of the Staff and Board of Directors at the New Jersey Friends of Clearwater Festival, we would like to extend a large thank you to our excellent volunteers for the 2013 Festival.

Clearwater Festival continues our BARRIER FREE tradition.

While at the festival please be aware that there are accessible portajohns. For sanitary and safety reasons please reserve these bathrooms for people with disabilities.

Please be aware that the roped off areas in front of each stage are reserved for people with disabilities. (Do not walk through these areas during performances.) Also the shade canopies are for people with disabilities and seniors who cannot take excessive sunlight.

There are trained access volunteers at the festival who can assist people with disabilities.
